Work finishing and pricing policies

Images that contain any photo manipulation are marked as mixed media, not photography.

Each photograph comes with a certificate that documents the materials/equipment used, the location, the edition number, and the artist's signature.

I print and finish each photograph myself using pigment ink-sets, cotton fiber art papers and only water-based archival materials. They are mounted on painter panels and coated with multi-layered "Timeless" veneer. To ensure longevity and for easy maintenance, I do not use any adhesives, laminates or resins. Panels are finished with floating frames in matching colours.

Custom-sized prints and other framing finishes are available on request.

Pricing of my work is based on a two-tier system. Each edition has a fixed base price for the first tier, and a progressively higher price for the second tier, which is the end of each image edition.

All source materials, films and digital files are destroyed and the end of each edition, with a small version retained for cataloguing purposes.

A photograph is the exact image that a viewer would contemplate on the scene in place of the camera, with his eyes and mind wide open.

“Artwork In Situ” placement proposals support

Placement proposals #3

Placement proposals #1

Steps:

- Clients use my portfolio or exhibition catalogues to select images of their choice.
- An image of the wall space is supplied by a gallery or client.
- Multiple virtual image placement proposals are then sent to clients.
- Framing/finishing options, size, proportions and budget are coordinated with clients/gallery/designer.
- Finished artwork done is delivered and installed or crated and shipped.
